

2024.03 Grant the Canadian Ombudsperson for Responsible Enterprise Legal Authority to Investigate Environmental and Human Rights Abuses

Resolved, that national council of The Catholic Women’s League of Canada in 104th national annual meeting of members assembled, urges the federal government to enact legislation giving the Canadian Ombudsperson for Responsible Enterprise the power to subpoena witnesses and documents when investigating complaints of environmental and human rights abuses attributed to companies registered in Canada and operating outside Canada.

Brief: Grant the Canadian Ombudsperson for Responsible Enterprise Legal Authority to Investigate Environmental and Human Rights Abuses

In 2019, a consultant was hired by the federal government to advise “...how best to equip the Canadian Ombudsperson for Responsible Enterprise (CORE) with sufficient tools to engage in credible and effective investigations of alleged human rights abuse and to ensure that she has powers to compel witnesses and documents,” and further stated legislation is the preferred method (McIsaac 3). Through the creation of this legislation, the CORE would have the power to subpoena witnesses and documents when investigating complaints of environmental and human rights abuses attributed to Canadian registered companies that operate outside of Canada.

An independent CORE had been established in 2018 (Canada, Global Affairs, The Government). The minister of international trade stated he was committed “to ensuring that the ombudsperson has all the tools required to ensure compliance in the hopefully very rare circumstances, where a company is not fully and appropriately cooperating” (Canada, Global Affairs, Announcement, 6).

In 2019, the minister of international trade diversification noted “... the most effective way to ensure the Ombudsperson has the tools they need would be to enact a stand-alone legal framework for the office, including stipulating its powers to compel documents, witnesses, and other key testimony” and had instructed his staff to proceed with this plan (Global Affairs).

Research was completed on CORE in spring 2021 by the Subcommittee on International Human Rights to the House of Commons Standing Committee on Foreign Affairs and International Development. It was found “...the power to compel witnesses and documents – a power that was initially promised by the Government of Canada, [was] subsequently left out of the CORE’s mandate” (Canada House). The committee’s report concluded “...it is not satisfied [the federal government] is doing all that it can to protect human rights where Canadian companies are operating. The [subcommittee] is confident that by creating due diligence legislation, human rights abuses by Canadian companies could be prevented” (Canada House). Despite the federal government requesting this review of the mandate of the CORE, there has been no change in its legal authority to access witnesses and documentation.

There are continued reports of allegations of human rights and environmental concerns against Canadian registered companies that operate outside of Canada, yet few have been settled and many are ongoing (Transnational). For example, an investigation by the CORE concluded human rights abuse against the Uyghur people through forced labour had occurred at the Hatu gold mine in China, operated by Dynasty Gold Corporation, a business with majority Canadian holdings (Meyerhoffer).

Without the authority to summon witnesses and documents, CORE is limited to acting in an advisory or mediator role. The Catholic Women’s League of Canada urges the federal government to create legislation to grant the CORE legal authority, thereby empowering the CORE to subpoena documents and witnesses when investigating allegations of environmental and human rights abuses attributed to Canadian registered companies that operate outside of Canada.
